

This is Ms. Susan from the Shorewood Public Library. Have you ever played the game, "would you rather"? This is a silly game to play to get to know more about someone and their preferences. This week, our project will be a "would you rather" Father's Day Card. This is a great time to play this silly game with your Dad and family, and get to know a little more about them. Make a list of questions that pose a dilemma between two options. The options may be both good, so you have to think about who you really are and why you would want one thing over another. It may be two equally bad things, but which would you rather? Just a fun, silly way to celebrate Dad!

1-Take a piece of paper and fold it in half. Cut and then fold each piece in sections to make numerous rectangles. Cut these into cards. Take another piece of heavy paper and fold in half length-wise. Tape, glue, or staple a piece of paper on just the bottom, front section. Fold in half or thirds. This will hold the cards when you give it to Dad. Decorate or color the front, outside of the card. Write a fun note for Dad or cut out words and pictures from a magazine or newspaper. Write your name and the date on the back to remember the year you made this silly card.

2-Write a question on each card with two options. It could be both bad things...Would you rather not have feet or not have hands? Who would want either of those two? Or it could be two goods things, but which is better? Would you rather eat ice cream every day for a week or have all the candy you want today? That's a hard one! Either way, I might have a tummy ache. For the younger artist, you can just add two pictures. Would you rather eat a bowl of peas or a whole can of corn? Put your cards inside the card and give to Dad on his special day, June 18. Make extra cards to put inside and add more questions any time you want to have a little fun with Dad. The is the card that keeps on giving...

I would rather have fun making art for a special Dad !
